THE OTHER SIDE.

The papers are telling us just now of some one in New Hampshire who was captivated by the interesting stories told about the profits of fruit growing, and who went to Vineland to follow this easy and respectable occupation, whereby to fill his pocket full of "rocks." But it turned out the other way. He found the farm and the vines already to his hand, a perfect bargain. It does not seem to have occurred to him that if this farm was a perfect fount of flowing profits, it would not be offered at such a tremendous bargain. Of what use, indeed, would have been such reflections against the relations of figures showing the tremendous gains that had been made? Figures cannot lie, and the New Hampshire man was in. But the grapes, or the market, or something went contrary, the moment the deal was signed. At the end of one year there was a balance of two thousand dollars on the wrong side. The next year it was worse—three thousand dollars. All he had was gone, and he departed for his native granite hills—sadder and wiser man!

This is not a solitary case. It is the lot of hundreds of unfortunates every day. The novelty is to find it recorded in our papers, so customary is it to paint all so lovely in regard to farming and gardening affairs. We are often told of the man who found ten acres enough, but we do not often hear of him who found it more than enough—entirely too much of a good thing. It is a very healthy sign when both sides of the question can be fully heard, and it was this that gave us so much pleasure in reading the letter of our disappointed friend.

Every one should remember, when he reads accounts of some tremendous profits in one calling, that they are quite exceptional, that they are generally balanced by tremendous losses, of which we hear very little. Land agents and speculators are only interested in the one side. There are plenty of "fine men in the business, but they cannot be expected to do more than show the rich side. It does no harm for the buyer to remember that there is and must be another side. With all its losses, farming and fruit-growing is as good and better than most pursuits. The thorough business man—one who understands his business—seldom loses. We are not addressing those, but those who think they have only to plow a piece of ground or plant a bunch of grapes in order to be at once rich.—Germantown Telegraph.

"The moral of the thing lies in its application," as Major Jack Downing used to remark. In this case the application is, perhaps unconsciously, omitted. As we read our contemporary, since most farming pays largely and sometimes it does not pay, and all without assignable reason. It only remains to be added that good farming, using skill and economy, always pays, while poor farming does not. We don't mean that money cannot be wasted in farm operations, but what is thus used wisely, the more spent the greater the amount earned. In other words, farming is subject to the same laws which prevail in all other industrial operations.

FRUIT CULTURE

From a very interesting article published in a Troyes (France) horticultural monthly from the pen of Dr Pigeaux, we extract the following

"We have been following a wrong track, and it will be both wise and profitable to adopt a more liberal practice. In the culture of tree stocks, it is indispensable not to plant them in soil having only a depth of 15 or 18 inches. Good vegetable mold, three or four feet in depth, is not too much for a fruit tree which is to live and bear for, let us say, fifty years. With vigorous trees to choose from—trees that have not been enervated by too early production, that have come of a good stock and that have been properly pruned, of a good form with plenty of room for the passage of the air—we may count on a sufficient and lasting yield, which is, after all, the most desirable point.

"A grave error, which cannot be too clearly pointed out, consists in giving the worst part of the land to fruit tree growing, the best portion by far being devoted to flowers and vegetables. In a poorer soil trees soon degenerate, and the most careful culture will not suffice to maintain the production of fruit at its proper level. We must resist the temptations to introduce new varieties of fruit trees into a plantation except, indeed, as an experiment. For a similar reason we must avoid the worthless varieties which our forefathers planted in their ignorance of what was really good. Ground taken up by worthless trees is simply a continual source of loss.

"In virtue of the principles laid down above, we deprecate the system of cultivation which only allows of trees being grown which are cared for by trained cultivators. One of the complaints to be urged against modern fruit growers is evidently the system of pruning at present in vogue, and which has been carried to an extreme by the majority of those who practice it. To such a pitch has pruning now arrived, that it is held to be synonymous with cultivation. We frankly declare that this assertion is erroneous. A properly pruned tree—that is to say, pruned with knowledge and discriminate reflection of which our best practitioners give every proof—ought easily to satisfy the wants of all amateur cultivators; but in the hands of unpractised or amateur growers it may be affirmed that it will never return during the whole of its short existence the half of the sums laid out upon it. What fault could we not find with the system of reversing the natural order of vegetation by curving the branches downward toward the soil; of the grafting of fruit buds; of the cutting of leaves, and of the twisting of shoots? These modes of procedure are looked upon as constituting a real progress in fruit culture, but, on the contary, they are a mistake. Without any way wishing to abolish amateurs' small gardens, let us make the cultivation of fruit what we have already made the cultivation of the vine, and let us no longer be afraid of devoting the best part of our land, even of our corn-growing districts, to the growing of fruit. It would soon become largely remunerative. But it must not be thought that it is only necessary to cover large surfaces of land with fruit trees well filled for the particular soil and climate of the locality chosen, and then fold our arms and trust in Providence; far from it, for an orchard of only a few acres requires the assiduous care of an experienced and laborious cultivator."

Our English cousins seem to take as much interest in the Centennial Exhibition as we do on this side of the water, judging from the way they talk about it in their papers. This is just as it should be, for the prosperity of the one nation means the same to the other, and the big pond lying between us has narrowed considerably during the last century.

ACTION OF LIME ON SOILS.—Mr. E. H. Libby, of the Scientific Farmer, draws the following conclusions regarding the action of lime in the soil, and the best methods for applying it as a fertilizer:—

"Soils rich in organic matter, even though they already contain it in considerable quantities, drained peat swamps, stiff clays and coarse, heavy soils, and especially those destitute of it, are all benefited by an application of lime. Good results also follow its use on light soils after an incorporation of organic matter, as green manure, muck, or a thick sod or green crop ploughed under. Sterile soils are rapidly rendered more sterile by its application. Wet lands show the least effect from treatment with lime. Hence such lands must either be drained, or receive an extra amount. Clay should also have organic matter applied in connection with lime. It acts most effectually near the surface. The apparent effect is greater the second season than the first, so the most satisfactory results are obtained by sowing broadcast in the early fall, with at most only a light harrowing or brushing. It should be applied in an air slacked, fine mechanical condition. The most profitable quantity to apply depends much on the land, wet soils those well filled with organic matter, and clays, taking most—from ten to forty bushels being recommended, according to the circumstances.

A careful study of this subject will explain why soils containing lime are benefited by an addition, and also why, though an excess of lime in soil causes the production of coarse plants, yet it has often thrown grasses and grains. It is said that turnips grown on some farms, on land well limed, are better cattle food than otherwise, perhaps because of the potash set free for their use. But a great deal still remains to be learned about this subject."

GERMAN OR GOLDEN MILLET.—As this wonderful grass is of great value to any farmer having long winters, and who needs a good supply of excellent hay, I propose to give my experience with it. It is sown the same as oats, from three pecks to one bushel of seed to the acre. The blade that resembles young corn, coming out alternately every five inches on the stalks, which grow from 4 to 7 feet high, having a large head, 1½ to 2 inches in diameter, and 8 to 10 inches long; one head yields from ½ to ¾ pint of seed. It matures in about 10 or twelve weeks from the time of sowing, ripens slowly, and never falls down or wastes. It resists the severest storms. The first it will start after it is ripe and the manner in which it resists wind is wonderful. It will yield from 40 to 50 bushels of seed, and 2½ to 3 tons of hay to the acre, will ripen in wet or dry, rich or poor land, and is the surest crop I have ever raised, and the most profitable. One rain on it will insure a full crop, and it is not like the old, common millet or Hungarian grass. Being a great fertilizer, it leaves the ground in a light mellow condition and free from everything that grows, the growth being so luxuriant that it literally smothers out everything else. It should not be sown in any climate until the danger of frost is over. It is sown in this climate from the 20th of April to the 1st and 15th of August with good results. It can be cut as hay, but the surest way is to cut as oats or wheat, and bind in bundles. I would recommend it in the highest terms to any farmer in the very best thing he can grow. Fowls of all kinds feed on the seed, and horses and cattle eat it eagerly. For which reasons it is unsurpassed.—N. Y. Tribune

THE INDISPUTABLE WAY TO BROIL A STEAK.—First see that the fire is clear and not too much of it; open well all the drafts, to carry off all the smoke that is made during the process of broiling, then see that the gridiron is smooth and quite clean; rub it well with whiting or chalk, lay on your steak. Do not pierce it, nor after it is on the fire, stick a fork into it, as the juice will escape. Neither salt or pepper it; do it at the dish. Place the gridiron close to the fire for the first few minutes, to carbonize the surface, then turn it over quickly to carbonize the other side. Now it should be exposed to a slower fire, to do which, place two bricks on their edges, and rest the gridiron on them. The steak should be turned repeatedly and carefully, and when it feels rather firm to the touch, it is done, and, as placed, it should be taken off, laid on a hot dish, on which is ounces of butter has been melted, less than one-half teaspoonful of salt, a pinch of white pepper and one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, well mixed. Lay the steak down one side and then on the other, serve immediately.

EGG SANDWICHES.—Boil fresh eggs 5 minutes, put them in cold water, and when quite cold peel them; then after chopping a little white out each of the eggs, cut the remainder in four slices. Lay them between bread and butter.

Freshwood Bone is one of the best insect-killers for scattering over plants growing in the open air which may be infested with insects.

TRYING TO STAMPEDE THE REPUBLICAN PARTY

If anyone could look into the secret plans of the Democratic managers of the next campaign he would find that Mr Blaine is the man they dread most. Not by any means because they believe he has committed any offence which would be considered specifically criminal, but because they have united upon him as the champion of the motley crew whose assailing Mr Blaine is above all others the one which they believe will be most effective in arousing the people of this country. We have the best of reason for believing that the most villainous letter that could be written has been purchased by the Democratic managers and that the writer is employed to hunt up and bring out the letter at the proper time. We will be glad to make their acquaintance when they do so. Their Presidential candidate will not be worth the paper on which his letter of acceptance is written. If they succeed in getting such a letter before the people they will have succeeded in securing the most infamous document ever penned by human hand. It will be a letter from Satan to Judas Iscariot, and will be received with the same degree of confidence by the people. Mr Blaine will be the first man in the history of the country who has ever been defeated for the Presidency by the publication of a forged letter. The Democratic managers will be the first men in the history of the country who have ever resorted to such a means of defeating a political opponent. The Democratic party will be the first political party in the history of the country which has ever nominated a candidate for President with the full knowledge that he was the author of a forged letter. The Democratic party will be the first political party in the history of the country which has ever nominated a candidate for President with the full knowledge that he was the author of a forged letter. The Democratic party will be the first political party in the history of the country which has ever nominated a candidate for President with the full knowledge that he was the author of a forged letter.

We have no fear that the Democratic managers will succeed in their villainous plot. The people are not to be deceived by such a trick. They will see through it. They will see that it is a trick of desperation. They will see that it is a trick of a party which has no hope of success except by fraud. They will see that it is a trick of a party which has no hope of success except by fraud. They will see that it is a trick of a party which has no hope of success except by fraud

EXIT MULLICAN.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC MATTER.

Mr. Blaine Entirely Exonerated.

Testimony of Atkins, Fisher and Mulligan Concluded.

The Judiciary Committee Discussing About the Letters

WASHINGTON June 3 The full Judiciary Committee adjourned at 1 o'clock There was a long discussion on the question of compelling Mr Blaine to bring the letters taken from Mulligan before the sub-committee but without coming to any conclusion the whole matter was put off until Tuesday.

Mr Atkins Fully Disposes of the Aquila Adams Sensation

The sub-committee met at 2 o'clock to continue the examination of witnesses in the Northern Pacific bonds matter

Wilbur Atkins testified he did not know anything about any sales of any railroad bonds of any railroad which received subsidies from the Government, nor of any sales of Northern Pacific bonds He was not acquainted with the Aquilla Adams transaction Fisher proposed to the witness to take some Northern Pacific bonds and the witness agreed to do so The firm of T Atkins & Co agreed to take $15,000 worth of them Witness did not recollect what the firm was to receive for the amount Was to receive them from Fisher, through Mr Blaine, but never got them, but the money was paid back by Fisher

Never had any other transactions in Northern Pacific nor any transaction in Central Pacific Kansas Pacific Central branch Western Branch Southern Branch Sioux City and Pacific or Texas and Pacific roads

Mr Blaine had no interest in the transaction

Question—Had Mr Blaine—Did I ever have any more interest in the transaction than to come to me and say Northern Pacific?

Ans—No Sir

Q—You got your money back with interest

A—Yes sir

Q—I say it was impossible for me to have derived any benefit from it

A—Yes sir

Mr Blaine never said that the letter which you Mr Atkins May 20 1876 have before published in regard to the matter in question which was done

Fisher corroborates Atkins evidence

Warren Fisher sworn—recalled—testified that he purchased from Blaine Dec 1870 an interest in the Northern Pacific bonds and sold 825,000 for it He did not now recollect what that interest was but knew at the time

The question of witness was called to a letter published in the New York Sun May 28 '76 purporting to have been written by Blaine to witness asking him to take care of that part of said interest in Northern Pacific bonds and he was asked if that was a correct copy of the letter received by him from Blaine

Witness said it was The original was destroyed Sept 21, 1872 when witness and Blaine had a final settlement He was a copy of this letter to Mr Adams The original was not among the letters brought here by Mulligan Witness never received any certificate of stock for his interest and the money was afterward returned by Blaine He did not know why he did not receive his certificate he never asked about it, but presumed because it was not profitable enough an enterprise Did not know why the transaction was not consummated nor how Blaine was able to control such interest

A purely friendly act--Blaine not interested in any way

Witness always understood this was purely friendly act on the part of Blaine and that Blaine was not to have any interest in any way whatever On the contrary Blaine always said he could not take an interest in it at all It had frequently been spoken of when Blaine visited his counting room as to when the opportunity offered Blaine notified witness about Never supposed this stock belonged to Blaine It had been his and been in his possession he could have delivered it of course He never declared that he should get his money back and on Sept 21 1872 it was returned to every cent of it with interest

To Mr Hunton.—He did not recall at this time that the letter was brought here by Mulligan related to this transaction He read only four or five of them recently The letter he read did not refer in any manner to any of the different Pacific Railroads which had been mentioned

Mulligan recalled--Some scribbling that does not concern Mr Blaine

James Mulligan was recalled and said among the papers obtained by Blaine from him was one containing a copy of the law relating to the Northern Pacific Railroad There were also some figures on it showing that it related to the one-eighth of one-twenty fourth part which had been spoken of He did not know who's hand writing it was but it was not in Mr Blaine's

Fisher was asked at this point what the paper was and where he received it and in reply he said he had no recollection of any such paper

Mulligan said he found it in the desk among other papers, not particularly among the correspondence of Mr Blaine with Mr Fisher, but among all the papers Witness was requested to read the receipt given by Blaine to Fisher at the time Fisher paid over the $25,000 This receipt was published in the Aquila-Adams correspondence After reading it witness said this was all the contract there was between Fisher and Blaine He did not know why the stock was not delivered by Blaine, and after waiting about a year Fisher refused to take the stock because so long a time had elapsed

All he Knows About It.

Question—Is this all you know about this transaction?

Ans—Yes, sir I only know that Fisher paid the money to Blaine and Blaine paid it back to Fisher Sept 21, 1872

Q—Did you ever hear anything more than you have testified about the matters alluded to from any one?

Ans—No, sir.

Mulligan Cross-Examined by Mr Blaine

By Mr. Blaine—Were you asked to bring any papers with you when you were summoned?

Ans—No, sir.

Q—Why did you bring these letters of mine?

Ans—I did not know what I was to be examined about. I supposed it would be about the matter referred to in the Aquila Adams letter, and so I brought these letters to refresh my memory. I brought them because they were written by you and there might be something in them that I should be asked to explain.

Q—Had you any reason to think that I wrote the memorandum of the law you spoke about?

A.—None at all, sir. Only I found it among the papers in the desk and it related to Northern Pacific.

Mulligan's grudge--The witness given leave to go home.

Q—Do you say you are not unfriendly to me? Do you know of any occasion for holding a grudge against me?

A—I never had any occasion to feel unfriendly, but thought I was not treated fairly on the occasion alluded to by Atkins yesterday.

Mr. Blaine was proceeding to make further inquiry on this point when witness said, "Do you want to go over all that? I will let you examine me if you will let me examine you afterwards" The chairman remarked that that was fair, but hardly pertinent to this inquiry under the present resolution.

Mulligan, Atkins and Fisher were allowed to return to their homes but were notified that they were not discharged and when wanted would be notified by telegraph The Committee then adjourned to Monday.

AMERICAN AND FOREIGN PATENTS

R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

For Inventions, Trade Marks and Designs,
No. 76 State St., opposite Kirby St., Boston.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States, also in Great Britain, France, and other foreign countries. Caveats, Copyrights, Assignments and Disputes for Patents drawn, and legal advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Reports how and for what the Patent Office refused Patents, and what is necessary to obtain them. Examinations made at the Patent Office, and opinions rendered as to validity and infringement. Models and drawings made. Information furnished as to the value of patents and inventions. Special attention given to Interference cases, and to the prosecution of rejected cases before the Patent Office. Copies of the claim of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington promptly. Nov. 4, 1875.

No agency in the United States possesses superior or unrivalled facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

After a long experience in Washington to procure Patents, and the usual great delay there are often saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS

"It affords me pleasure to say that Mr. Eddy is one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."—Late Commissioner CHARLES MASON, Counsel of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more competent and trustworthy attorney than Mr. Eddy, who is capable of putting their application in such a form as to secure them an early and favorable action at the Patent Office."—EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has procured for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having these successful in almost every case. Such unanimous success, great talent and ability on the part of his client to secure them, I have never known in a practice of more than twenty years. I therefore unhesitatingly recommend all inventors to employ Mr. Eddy, as they may rest assured that their business will receive the most faithful attention to secure their rights, and as very reasonable charges."—JOHN TAGGART, Late Examiner of Patents.

What is Accomplished by Vegetine.

When it is found that some weak and impoverished feature, whether it be the stomach, the liver, the bowels, or the kidneys, and prompt the sufferer may not be sick enough to take to bed, there are powerful impurities in the blood, which, if left to themselves, will be sure to develop themselves in a severe form during the winter season. The remedy may be thicker, viz., the dissolution of the blood, so poor that it will circulate with the cold.

Vegetine will do this. It will so fortify the system against colds or other prevailing weather as with a key. Vegetine is the blood. The Vegetine will remove the blood, clean the skin, and give the liver a healthy action, and thus enable the kidneys to purify the blood. The Vegetine will remove the impurities of the world, by the bowels, and the whole system is renovated and built up anew. This is precisely what Vegetine does, and it is the only true thorough blood purifier which has accomplished so many wonderful cures, as will be seen by the following unquestionable evidence:

A Husband's Statement of the Great Suffering of His Wife.

HARWICH, Sept. 21, 1875.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—I feel bound duty to say a word in favor of your Vegetine. My wife has been troubled with a blood humor for several years, which the doctors called Scrofula or Cancerous Humors or Rheumatic Affections. It cannot be described; and as a Blood Purifier and spring medicine, it is the best thing I have ever used, and I have used almost everything. I can cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of such a medicine. Yours respectfully,

MESSRS. A. A. DINSMORE, 18 Russell St.
